

MR. NIXON IN TOWN.

He Outlines His Senatorial Fight.

Hon. Geo. S. Nixon of Winnemucca was in this city yesterday and dropped into the APPEAL office. He says that he has entered the Senatorial fight to give the people of Nevada a chance to declare themselves on the question of "Nevada for Nevadans." He discussed the situation as follows:

"I did not oppose Hon. John P. Jones during his campaign and would not oppose him now were his home and his interests here. As soon as the campaign was over he hastened to his home in Santa Monica, where his family resides and his interests are.

"This act or his caused great dissatisfaction all over the State and it has crystallized into a movement which has placed me in the field for the U. S. Senator. I do not dispute his loyalty to the cause of silver, but I dispute his loyalty to the State. He is careless of its interests and its people and indifferent to his Senatorial duties as I will show by the publication of his course in the Senate as shown by the Congressional Record. During some of the sessions he did not once answer to roll call. The people of Humboldt county are with me solidly in this fight and the people of other Eastern counties, who pledged their legislative nominees for Jones, will absolve them by petition.

"I am in this fight to stay, and I wish the APPEAL to state that any rumor that I intend to quit the fight is untrue. I shall stay in the fight to the end, and I am not in to be bought off as some of the Jones men have stated. I am in to the finish. Whether I win or get but one vote, the principles for which I contend will still live."

Mr. Nixon left for Reno last evening, but will return shortly and his headquarters will be at the Ormsby House.

BIG IRRIGATION SCHEME.

A Proposition in Which Carson City is Greatly Interested.

The Examiner of Tuesday has the following:

George T. Lamy is in the city to urge the advantages of one of the most gigantic irrigation projects ever attempted in the State of Nevada. Some of the most influential and wealthy residents of the Silver State are interested in the scheme and have already advanced enough money to warrant great success. Thousands of acres of land have been secured and agencies have been established to secure desirable settlers for prospective colonies. Fifteen reservoir sites, on as many tributaries to the Carson river, have been obtained and a new theory of irrigation has been put into practice. It is believed that most of the serious obstacles to effective irrigation have been overcome, and that the new scheme will prompt a general development of the State.

The company having control of the affair has been incorporated for some time and has already expended considerable money. It is known as the Alpine Land and Reservoir Company, with Governor Reinhold Sadler as President. All operations of the projectors have been and will be confined to the Carson valley. The projectors, as a matter of course, are money-makers. They have secured possession of large tracts of arid lands and expect to sell what they own at a profit. They hope to induce colonists to go to the valley, and agencies in this city and New York will be established to offer inducements. Several people in New York have already received the necessary authority to make negotiations.

The sale of land is not the only profit the projectors expect to secure. Enormous quantities of water have been stored and will be sold. The company claims, however, that the problem of irrigation in Nevada has been solved and that the greatest benefit will come to the State.

The company has already purchased from the Occident Land and Improvement Company of this city, in which the Sharon estate and Francis G. Newlands are interested, 8,000 acres of land. Several small reservoirs have already been constructed and several more are planned. The projectors are working upon the theory that practical irrigation is to be obtained only by the construction of a series of small reservoirs and not with one, to be built at enormous expense. The correct plan, it is claimed, is to construct this series at comparatively small cost.

At present, attention is being given only to the upper Carson valley, where 17,000 acres of arid land are controlled. The engineers intend to irrigate the land with a canal twenty feet wide at the top, ten feet wide at its bottom and six feet deep. Six dams have been constructed and by next summer it is promised 6,000 acre-feet will be supplied. The scheme as outlined promises cheap lands and abundant water at reasonable rates.

If the new experiment in irrigation for the silver State succeeds it is extremely probable that similar attempts will be made in all of the valleys of Nevada. It is possible, the projectors claim, to construct a similar series of reservoirs at the headwaters of every river in the State. Enormous quantities of water can thus be stored and after years of waiting and the expenditure of fabulous sums of money the problem of irrigation will be solved.

The Reason.

A gentleman of this city asked Miss why her father had no gift for her a Christmas present of a book as he had promised. She was waiting a little while after the holidays to get 'em when they are marked down so much lower," was the reply.

THE JEWELRY CASE

A Large Crowd Watch the Pin Case.

The suit of the Nevada Jewelry Co., vs Miss Louise Rinckle for $50, the price of a breast pin, drew a large crowd at the Justice Court yesterday. There was standing room only and a lot of people packed in the halls when the case came up.

Mr. Frank Golden, the plaintiff in the case, was represented by James Torreyson, and the fair defendant, Miss Rinckle, was represented by District Attorney McGowan.

Mr. Golden stated under oath that in 1891 he had sold the pin in question to Miss Rinckle and she took it to wear a few days to see how she liked it, with the understanding that she was to pay for it in a few days or return it. She had neither returned it or paid for it, hence the suit.

The defendant, who was dressed in a dark skirt and light waist, looked her prettiest as she took the stand. She said that in 1891 Mr. Golden asked her to come to the store and select a pin and she had done so in company with Miss Fryer. The pin was a gift to her from Mr. Golden as a token of his esteem.

Miss Fryer corroborated the testimony of the defendant and swore she was present when the gift was made. It was also argued that in case Mr. Golden insisted on collecting $50 for the pin, the statute of limitations barred him from collecting.

Miss Rinckle on the stand when asked her age, blushed slightly, as young ladies are expected to when pressed by an attorney with such a question, and said: "Twenty-two years."

The plaintiff's attorney held that this being her age, the statutes of limitations did not run while she was a minor.

Mr. Golden admitted that Miss Fryer was present at the time the pin transferred but that when he told Miss Rinckle that she was expected to pay for the pin, he purposely spoke in a low tone that Miss Fryer might not hear and Miss Rinckle might not feel embarrassed.

The event which led up to the giving of the pin was started by Miss Rinckle as a visit by Mr. Golden to Miss Rinckle's house, where he loaned her a ruby pin. He then asked her to return it, saying that if she did so she could take her pick of any pin in the store. Miss Fryer was present when this offer was made and so testified.

Golden swore he never called at the home but once in his life.

The case was taken under advisement. It being the new Justice's first case he decided to take full time to consider.

The Press and Purity.

Yesterday the APPEAL received from the State Silver Central Committee a check for $8.00 in full for printing the advertisements of the party during the campaign. The APPEAL has no fault to find with the Committee for the small sum paid as we are in a position to know that the committee had less than $300 for the entire campaign and that $200 of it went to the newspapers of the State that espoused the cause of silver. Weekly and studies were treated alike and they cost $8 apiece.

The begrudging pay of newspapers that extended from $100 to $300 apiece for an extra labor in the campaign is not to the fault of the Committee, but the fault of the Purity of Election law, which limits the candidates to a certain sum and makes no allowance for legitimate printing and advertising incidental to a campaign. The law requires candidates to make oath of their expenses, and no man with any regard for his oath can evade its provisions.

The law should be amended at the next session of the legislature so that the legitimate expenses of candidates for printing, hall rent and traveling over the State should be exempt from the provisions of the act.
